Testo in italiano:
Il progetto di ricerca ha lo scopo di definire i tratti caratterizzanti la produzione ceramica risalente all’età calcolitica e a quella del Bronzo (in particolare del Bronzo Tardo, ossia epoca mittanica e medio assira) nell’area del Navkur, una regione della Mesopotamia Settentrionale situata nell’odierno Kurdistan iracheno (Iraq). L’assegnistà dovrà studiare la sequenza stratigrafica del sito di Asingeran per poi concentrarsi sui relativi assemblaggi ceramici del sito, fornendo una classificazione basata sia sugli aspetti formali sia su quelli fisici. Il lavoro di analisi degli assemblaggi ceramici avrà due obiettivi principali. Il primo è produrre una seriazione di tipi diagnostici attraverso analisi statistiche valida per le fasi protostoriche e dell’età del Bronzo indagate nel sito in particolare durante le campagne 2021 del 2022 per permettere il corretto studio dell’evoluzione della produzione vascolare fra V e II millennio a.C. Il secondo obiettivo prevede invece lo studio della ceramica nella più ampia prospettiva regionale dell’Alto Tigris orientale. I risultati ottenuti ad Asingeran saranno confrontati con le sequenze ceramiche dei principali siti di riferimento posizionati nelle regioni limitrofe per le epoche oggetto di esame (Tepe Gawra, Grei Resh, Qalinji Agha, Ninive, Tell Brak e Tell Rimah, Helawa, Muqable, Logardan, Gir Gomel) per produrre una tipologia con valenza regionale per tutta l’area del Navkur e dell’Alto Tigris. I principali tipi di riferimento già noti, quali ad esempio Sprig Ware, Gawra Decorated Ware, Ninive V, Khabur Ware, Mittanian Red Slip e Red Edge Ware dovranno essere presi in considerazione e la loro presenza andrà verificata negli assemblaggi di Asingeran per valutare l’originalità della tradizione ceramica presente nell’area del Navkur o il suo livello di somiglianza con le principali regioni ceramiche presenti nella Mesopotamia settentrionale.

Il candidato dovrà inoltre produrre un catalogo digitale di forme lucidate con software professionale (Illustrator o Autocad) e presentare una prima classificazione degli impasti in uso fra V e Il millennio a.C.

I requisiti per lo svolgimento del progetto prevedono una dettagliata conoscenza delle tradizioni ceramiche caratterizzanti la Mesopotamia Settentrionale fra Calcolitico ed età del Bronzo. È inoltre richiesta la partecipazione alle campagne di scavo che si terranno nel 2024 e 2025 della durata di 1 mese e mezzo. Il candidato dovrà perciò dimostrare di essere in possesso di un’ampia e prolungata esperienza in missioni archeologiche condotte in Medio Oriente.

Text in English:

The scope of the research project is the definition of the traits characterizing the ceramic production during the Chalcolithic and the Bronze Age (in particular the Late Bronze Age, i.e. the Mittanian and middle Assyrian) in the Plain of Navkur, a region of northern Mesopotamia located in modern Iraqi Kurdistan region (Iraq). The researcher will have to study first the Bronze and Chalcolithic stratigraphic sequence of Asingeran and later on the related ceramic assemblages in order to provide a classification of the materials based on the formal and physical aspects of the ceramic assemblages. The analysis of the body of data has two main targets. The first is provide by means of statistical analysis a seriation of diagnostic types that can be valid for the protohistoric and Bronze Age phases investigated at Asingeran, in particular during the 2021 and 2022 seasons. The researcher is expected to provide a precise description of the evolution of the ceramic production at Asingeran between the 5th and the 2nd mill. BCE. The second target is the study of the ceramic in a wider regional perspective that embraces the entire Upper Tigris region, the ceramic types identified during the first phase of the project will compared with those from the main reference sites for the same epochs situated in neighbouring regions (e.g. Tepe Gawra, Girei Resh, Qalijin Agha, Ninive, Tell Brak e Tell Rimah, Helawa, Muqable, Logardan, Gir Gomel) to identify a catalogue of diagnostic forms that has a regional validity for the area of the Navkur and for the entire Upper Tigris region. The main already known ceramic types, e.g. Sprig Ware, Gawra Decorated Ware, Ninive V, Khabur Ware, Mittanian Red Slip and Red Edge Ware, will be taken into consideration: their presence or absence in the assemblages of Asingeran will be verified to estimate the originality of the ceramic traditions of the area of Navkur or the similarity level with the main ceramic regions occurring in northern Mesopotamia.

A third goal of the project will be the in-depth analysis of the aspects concerning the modes of ceramic production. The researcher will have to carry out an analysis of the main technological changes that occurred between the 5th and the 2nd mill. a.C. in the ceramic production techniques. The focus of this analysis will be the study of these latter’s role as markers of socio-economic changes that characterized both the rural and urban centres of northern Mesopotamian during the Chalcolithic and Bronze Ages. In more detail, the researcher is expected to explore the reference theoretical models for the study of ceramics such as the “community of practice” or the “labour specialization” in Mesopotamian civilizations. At the end of the project the researcher is expected to have written two articles to submit to journals with international relevance.

The researcher is also expected to prepare a digital catalogue of the forms drawn with the professional softwares (Adobe Illustrator or AutoCad) as well as a first classification and definition of the main fabric types in use between the 5th and the 2nd millennium BCE.

The expected qualifications to carry out this research project are a detailed knowledge of the area and the site that represents the scientific focus of the investigation and in particular of the main ceramic traditions characterizing the area and more in general northern Mesopotamia during the Chalcolithic and the Bronze Age. It is requested the participation in the excavation campaigns at Asingeran that will take place during the 2024 and 2025 for 1 month and half. The researcher is therefore expected to possess a long and continued experience in archaeological missions conducted in Middle eastern countries.
