Art. 1

A selection proceeding is hereby announced for the award of 1 research grant at the University of Udine for the performance of the research activity identified in Annex A, which forms an integral and substantial part of this call. The research grant is linked to the research project on which it is based and is subject to the corresponding financial coverage.

The grant may be renewed with the winner in accordance with the provisions of Article 22 of Law no. 240 of 30 December 2010 (in the text prior to Leg. Decree no. 36 of 30 April 2022, converted with amendments by Law no. 79 of 29 June 2022) and the Regulations of the University of Udine for the awarding of research grants issued by Rector's Decree no. 182 of 31 March 2021, in the presence of a positive assessment by the scientific supervisor of the activity carried out by the research fellow, adequate scientific justification and related financial coverage, within the limits set out in Article 3, letters b) and c) below.

Failure to meet the admission requirements at the time of applying shall result in the exclusion of the candidate from the selection process.

Possession of a PhD qualification or equivalent qualification obtained abroad or, for the sectors concerned only, of a medical specialisation qualification accompanied by an adequate scientific production, constitutes a preferential requirement for the awarding of the grant envisaged for this selection, if it has not been mentioned as an admission requirement.

The Selection Board shall assess, for the sole purpose of admission to the competition, the suitability of any qualification obtained abroad, without prejudice to the assessment of the medical specialisation qualification to which Article 38, paragraph 3.1 of Legislative Decree 165/2001, as amended, and the relevant Community regulations apply.

The Board assesses the qualification obtained abroad based on the relevant documentation enclosed with the application to take part in the selection and may exclude the candidate if the submitted documentation does not provide sufficient elements for the assessment.

Candidates are therefore invited to enclose all documentation in their possession relating to their qualifications in order to provide the Board with sufficient elements to assess their position.

Candidates are admitted to the selection process subject to a reservation and their exclusion, for failure to meet the requirements, may be ordered at any time by reasoned decision.

Testo in italiano:

Il kiwi è un genere a cui appartengono numerose specie ma poche sono di interesse commerciale. Tuttavia in alcune specie sono stati documentati lavori riguardanti i caratteri di interesse pomologico e di resistenza alle malattie emergenti. Queste caratteristiche sono oggetto di studio da molti anni e dall'inizio degli anni '80 è in corso presso l'Università di Udine un programma di miglioramento genetico del kiwi. Negli ultimi anni al tradizionale programma di miglioramento genetico, finalizzato alla ricerca di varietà con caratteristiche innovative dei frutti, si sono affiancati nuovi programmi per la ricerca di selezioni resistenti a malattie emergenti, come il cancro batterico del kiwi.

Rispetto ad altri approcci di editing genomico, il sistema CRISPR/Cas9 è particolarmente utile per l'editing genetico multiplex, perché la sua specificità target si basa su molecole di RNA guida singole e corte (sgRNA). Alcuni studi sono già stati condotti nelle cultivar femminili diploidi Actinidia chinensis "Hongyang" e "Hort16A". I geni bersaglio per l'editing del genoma potrebbero anche essere identificati dall'analisi della mappatura QTL in corso.

Negli ultimi anni, gli approcci di modifica del genoma sono diventati comuni nelle piante. Tuttavia, negli alberi da frutto non è possibile rimuovere il CRISPR/CAS9 dopo la trasformazione mediante autofecondazione e selezione dei trasformanti per ottenere piante modificate e prive di sequenze plasmidiche. Ciò rappresenta una seria limitazione per l'applicazione della tecnica. Supereremo questo problema introducendo CAS9 e sgRNA clonati in un plasmide adatto all'espressione in pianta che ospita il sistema Flp/FRT al fine di rimuovere tutte le sequenze di T-DNA inserite nella pianta e contenenti il sistema CRISPR/Cas9 e il gene marcatore di selezione. I costrutti verranno consegnati tramite Agrobacterium tumefaciens nei piccioli delle foglie di kiwi. Successivamente, le linee modificate rigenerate tramite embriogenesi somatica verranno valutate per l'integrazione del T-DNA e per l'escissione di sequenze indesiderate mediante il sistema Flp/FRT.

Recentemente è stato sviluppato un nuovo approccio in cui i germogli geneticamente modificati sono stati indotti direttamente su piante coltivate nel terreno o coltivate in vitro, attraverso la co-somministrazione di reagenti di modificazione genetica e regolatori dello sviluppo (DR). Per ottenere germogli modificati privi di transgeni, combineremo l'uso del plasmide sopra descritto con costrutti che esprimono geni DR quali wuschel (WUS) sotto il controllo del sistema Flp/FRT.

Lo scopo della nostra ricerca sui kiwi è raggiungere la resistenza al cancro trasformando varietà commerciali di actinidia con AMP altamente efficaci. Come descritto in Hao et al, i risultati dello screening hanno mostrato che D2A21 è uno dei peptidi più efficaci contro diverse specie batteriche. Pertanto, come primo passo, la sequenza codificante D2A21 verrà sintetizzata e clonata in un vettore binario per la trasformazione delle piante. CAS9 e gli sgRNA saranno clonati in un plasmide adatto per l'espressione in piante che ospitano il sistema Flp/FRT.

Infine, le piante rigenerate di kiwi verranno testate per verificare la mutazione on-target mediante amplificazione PCR della regione genomica di interesse, clonazione e sequenziamento, e per verificare quali modifiche siano avvenute a livello della sequenza nucleotidica del gene. Le mutazioni fuori bersaglio verranno valutate anche sottoponendo le linee più interessanti ad analisi di sequenziamento dell'intero genoma.

Le piante trasformate verranno inoculate artificialmente con sospensioni batteriche e la resistenza/tolleranza indotta verrà valutata osservando i sintomi della malattia e mediante analisi molecolare.

Risultati attesi:

- perfezionare il sistema Flp/FRT nel kiwi per rimuovere tutte le sequenze di T-DNA;
- introduzione della difesa tramite editing e controllo del genoma CAS9;
- induzione di resistenza o tolleranza al PSA.

Text in English:

Kiwifruit is a genus to which numerous species belong but few are of commercial interest. However, characters of pomological interest and resistance to emerging diseases have been documented in some species. These characteristics have been the subject of study for many years and a breeding program for kiwifruit has been underway at the University of Udine since the early 1980s. In recent years, the traditional genetic breeding program, aimed at researching varieties with innovative fruit characteristics, has been joined by new programs for the research of selections resistant to emerging diseases, such as bacterial canker of kiwifruit.

Compared to other genome editing approaches, the CRISPR/Cas9 system is particularly useful for multiplexed gene editing, because its target specificity is based on short and single guide RNA molecules (sgRNA). Some studies have already been conducted in the diploid Actinidia chinensis female cultivars "Hongyang" and "Hort16A". Target genes for genome editing could also be identified from QTL mapping analysis underway.

In recent years, genome editing approaches have become common in plants. However, in fruit trees it is not possible to remove the CRISPR/CAS9 after transformation by self-fertilisation and selection of transformants to obtain plants edited and free of plasmid sequences. This represents a serious limitation for the application of the technique. We will overcome this issue by introducing CAS9 and sgRNAs cloned in a plasmid suitable for expression in plant harbouring the Flp/FRT system in order to remove all T-DNA sequences inserted in the plant and containing the CRISPR/Cas9 system and the selection marker gene. Constructs will be delivered via Agrobacterium tumefaciens into kiwifruit leaf petioles. Then, edited lines regenerated via somatic embryogenesis will be assessed for T-DNA integration and for the excision of undesired sequences by Flp/FRT system.

A new approach has been recently developed in which gene-edited shoots were induced directly on soil grown or in vitro-cultured plants, through co-delivering of gene-editing reagents and developmental regulators (DR). In order to obtain edited shoots transgene-free, we will combine the use of the plasmid described above with constructs expressing DR genes such wuschel (WUS) under the control of the Flp/FRT system.

The aim of our research in kiwifruit is to achieve canker disease resistance by transforming commercial varieties of actinidia with highly effective AMPs. As described in Hao et al, screening results showed that D2A21 is one of the most effective peptides against several bacterial species. Therefore, as a first step, the sequence coding D2A21 will be synthesised and cloned into a binary vector for plant transformation. CAS9 and sgRNAs will be cloned in a plasmid suitable for expression in plants harbouring the Flp/FRT system.

Finally, the regenerated plants of kiwifruit will be tested for checking the on-target mutation by PCR amplification of the genomic region of interest, cloning and sequencing, and for verifying which modifications have occurred at the level of the gene nucleotide sequence. Off-target mutations will also be evaluated by subjecting the most interesting lines to whole genome sequencing analysis.

The transformed plants will be artificially inoculated with bacterial suspensions and the induced resistance/tolerance will be evaluated by observing the symptoms of the disease and by molecular analysis.

Deliverable:

- perfect the Flp/FRT system in kiwifruit in order to remove all T-DNA sequences;
- defensine introduction via CAS9 genome editing and checking;
- resistance induction or tolerance to PSA.
