Article 1
Call of the selection procedure

A public selection procedure is announced, through comparative evaluation, based on qualifications and interview, for the awarding of no. 1 post-doc research contract, pursuant to art. 22-bis of Law no. 240 of 30.12.2010, as amended by Law no. 79/2022, based on the following specifications:

Competition code: 2026IPD63_12GIUR11_DISG

Number of positions to be activated: 1

Contract duration: 12 months

Department: Department of Law

Scientific-disciplinary group: 12/GIUR-11 Diritto comparato

Scientific disciplinary sector: GIUR-11/B Diritto pubblico comparato

Research project subject of the contract and activities to be performed: Ecomuseums and River Contracts: New Tools for Territorial Planning

Description of the main research activities that the post-doc position holder will be involved in: The project aims to explore, from an interdisciplinary and comparative perspective, the relationship between River Contracts and Ecomuseums as integrated tools for territorial planning through participatory processes and the active involvement of local stakeholders. River Contracts are becoming increasingly widespread in Friuli Venezia Giulia: as of now (June 2026), as many as seven are implementing their Action Plans (Laguna di Marano, Rio Roiello di Pradamano, Natisone, Alto Livenza, Noncello, Cormor, and Judrio), while others are in the preparatory phase, including the Isonzo – which is at a more advanced stage – the Resia, the Ledra, and the Torre. In various contexts, such as those of the Noncello, Resia, and Ledra rivers, the creation of synergies with Ecomuseums is proving to be a highly significant partnership e, capable of strengthening the potential of both initiatives with regard to a resource – water – that offers a wide range of aspects to explore. On the one hand, there are issues related to its conservation in a context made complex by climate change; on the other, there is the increasingly significant importance of its valorisation in the context of land management and the development of local communities. Contracts, as stated in the relevant "National Charter," "pursue multiple objectives: safety, risk mitigation and prevention, environmental restoration and landscape valorisation, sustainable use of resources, sustainable tourism, and the promotion of water culture." Many of these goals are also shared by Ecomuseums, an institution that is itself widely present in the Region. After examining the characteristics of the two institutions in depth, the research will focus on possible forms of collaboration and the impact these may have on the involvement of local communities in promoting the unique features of the territory. The approach will be comparative and interdisciplinary. Legal aspects will be central to the study, starting with relevant regional legislation. Regional Law No. 11 of April 29, 2015, concerning the Comprehensive Regulation on Soil Protection and Water Use (Disciplina organica in materia di difesa del suolo e di utilizzazione delle acque) has in fact defined the general guidelines for the negotiated and participatory planning process of River Contracts, to which Article 12 is explicitly dedicated. As for Ecomuseums, the regulations were introduced by Regional Law No. 11 of June 20, 2006, which was subsequently superseded by the entry into force of Regional Law No. 23 of September 25, 2015, containing Regional Regulations on Cultural Heritage, which reserves only Article 12 for this institution. The analysis will be conducted taking into account not only the national framework but also from a comparative perspective. Particular attention will be given to the French case, as that country is the point of reference for the origins of both institutions: within the evolution of museums between the 1970s and 1980s, the term écomusée was used for the first time, while, in 1981, the contracts de rivière were introduced. In addition to legal aspects, other factors relevant to the research topic will be considered. The unique characteristics of water as a resource justify collaboration with the COMUNICare H2O project, launched by the University of Udine with the support of the Friuli Venezia Giulia Region to foster a culture of awareness regarding water as a resource; the project coordinator, Daniele Goi, professor of Environmental and Sanitary Engineering, will also serve as co-supervisor for the postdoctoral researcher. Furthermore, the study of the relationship with Ecomuseums allows for the enhancement of museum-related, geographical, and landscape knowledge, using the comparative method and the categories developed by Legal Geography. In this context, collaboration is also planned with Professor Francesco Visentin, a geographer at the University of Udine and scientific supervisor of the Regional Roundtable on River Contracts. In addition to the theoretical analysis, in collaboration with faculty members from the various academic disciplines involved – primarily Comparative Public Law, but also Environmental Engineering and Human Geography – the research aims to examine the various ways in which Ecomuseums can collaborate within the framework of River Contracts. Particular attention will be paid to the commonalities between the two approaches: on the one hand, in terms of interaction with local communities, which are expected to play a driving role; and on the other, in terms of building a shared project that allows for the integration of water resource conservation and management with the enhancement of the local area in all its aspects (historical, landscaple, cultural, etc.).
As previously mentioned, important initiatives in this area are already underway or in the planning stages within the Region: the "Ecomuseo delle Acque del Gemonese" is promoting a river contract for the Ledra River; the Noncello River Contract calls for the creation of an Ecomuseum; and the local Ecomuseum is expected to be involved in the emerging Resia River Contract. The research will examine these cases to highlight common characteristics, challenges, and best practices that can be shared. This work will be facilitated by collaboration with the "Ecomuseo delle Acque del Gemonese", the host institution, which will allow the post-doc researcher to monitor the development of the Ledra River contract.

Description of the third-mission collaboration activities that the post-doc position holder will be involved in: Throughout the project, the postdoctoral researcher will collaborate on public engagement and knowledge transfer initiatives promoted by the faculty members involved in the project. In particular, interim seminars for discussion and reflection will be organized at the University and the Ecomuseums, with the aim of raising awareness and increasing the participation of local stakeholders. To this end, an dissemination video will also be produced, featuring testimonials and contributions from the various parties involved. In addition, the post-doc researcher will be able to follow and collaborate on educational and dissemination activities organized by the Regional Roundtable of River Contracts, the Thematic Community, and also on individual initiatives launched and promoted by the various River Contracts in the region. The research findings will be disseminated through an open-access publication with a leading publisher, which, in addition to the relevant legal framework, will outline the nature of the relationships between Ecomuseums and River Contracts through the various analytical perspectives developed; the experiences of Friuli Venezia Giulia will serve as case studies. This publication will be presented at an interdisciplinary conference aimed at the various stakeholders (universities, Ecomuseums, municipalities) and civil society, to highlight how River Contracts and Ecomuseums serve as tools for enhancing the relationships between cultural landscape, community, and territory.

Description of the activities involving collaboration in teaching (supplementary and student service): The appointee will collaborate on supplementary teaching and student support activities organized by the faculty members involved in the project to promote the research conducted and enhance understanding of the relevant topics, with particular reference to Ecomuseums and River Contracts. Given the interdisciplinary nature of the research, supplementary educational activities may be organized for students in various degree programs at the University (for example, courses in Environmental and Energy Law, Human Geography and Literary Geography, and Cultural Heritage Law).

Expected impact of the project activities on the territory of the Friuli Venezia Giulia Region: By examining the legal and interdisciplinary aspects of the relationship between River Contracts and Ecomuseums, this research aims to provide useful insights for strengthening participatory governance processes in which local stakeholders play a leading role not only in preserving the inherited water landscape but also in managing the future one. Promoting these processes can, in fact, make communities more aware and resilient in the face of both cultural transformations and climate change.

Host organization involved in the implementation of the activities: Ecomuseo delle Acque del Gemonese.

Description of the host organization's involvement in the activities:

If the object of the self-certification is not clearly identified in terms of nature, duration, temporal location and the entity involved, the Selection Committee may disregard it.
The Administration reserves the right to proceed with suitable checks on the veracity of the content of the declarations made in the application to participate, pursuant to and in accordance with the procedures established by current legislation. Candidates who make false statements are subject to the penalties set out in the Criminal Code and specific laws (art. 76 of Presidential Decree no. 445 of 28.12.2000) and will forfeit any benefits resulting from the measure issued based on the false statement, if the Administration's review reveals the declaration's content to be untrue.

The Selection Committee is appointed by the Rector and is identified according to the provisions contained in art. 9 of the Regulation for the awarding of post-doc research contracts (pursuant to art. 22, Law 240/2010).
The Rector's Decree of Appointment will be published on the University's online noticeboard and on the University website dedicated to the selection procedures for the awarding of post-doc research contracts, at the following address:https://www.uniud.it/it/ateneo-uniud/concorsi-bandi-uniud/concorsi/contratti_ricerca/incarichi_post-doc From the publication of the appointment decree on the University's online noticeboard, candidates have 15 days to submit any requests for recusal to the Rector due to incompatibility of the examiners. Article 6
Selection process

The post-doc research contract is awarded following a public selection process, based on a comparative evaluation of qualifications and an interview, and is designed to assess whether candidates possess a scientific and professional curriculum suitable to conduct the activity covered by the tender.
The final score is given by the sum of the score obtained in the preliminary comparative assessment of qualifications and the score obtained in the interview.
The Committee has a total of 100 points available for each candidate, which are distributed as follows:

a) Scientific-professional curriculum vitae including overall scientific production and previously conducted research activities, to be assessed with particular reference to the suitability to conduct the activities covered by the post-doc research contract: max 34 points
b) Scientific publications with particular reference to pertinence and relevance to the activities covered by the post-doc research contract: max 6 points;
c) Verbal interview to assess the candidate's aptitude and possession of the skills necessary to conduct the activities covered by the post-doc research contract, as well as knowledge of the English language relevant to the research: max 60 points of which 6 points reserved for the language English and French.

The Selection Committee reserves the right to specify the afore-mentioned evaluation criteria with sub-criteria. The evaluation criteria, as specified, are published on the online noticeboard and on the University website.
The Committee collectively expresses a reasoned opinion and assigns the relevant score for each individual evaluation criterion. The final score is the sum of the scores obtained in the qualifications assessment and the score obtained in the interview. Only candidates who have achieved a minimum overall score of 70/100 (seventy out of a hundred) are eligible for admission to the ranking. However, if the candidate, following the preliminary evaluation of the qualifications, obtains a score which, added to the maximum score attributable to the interview, is less than 70/100, the candidate themselves will not be admitted to the interview. The score reported in the qualifications evaluation is disclosed to candidates before the interview. The interview with the Committee will take place in public, electronically, using audio and video conference calls. Anyone who requests to attend the interview may do so according to the procedures indicated in the announcement.
Notice of the day, time is published at least 15 days in advance on the University website at:
https://www.uniud.it/it/ateneo-uniud/concorsi-bandi-uniud/concorsi/contratti_ricerca/incarichi_post-doc

Publication of the notice on the University website constitutes notification to all applicants, without the need for any further communication. Candidates are responsible for staying informed by consulting the competition website to find the necessary information about the selection process.

Digitally signed electronic document pursuant to Legislative Decree. 82/2005 and subsequent amendments and related provisions, which replaces the paper document and the handwritten signature

Failure to connect online to the interview at the scheduled date and time, or connecting late, will be considered a withdrawal from participation in the selection process. The University of Udine declines all responsibility in the event that technical problems, attributable to the interested party, prevent the public discussion via videoconference from proceeding as planned.
At the oral interview, candidates must present a valid identity document or equivalent identification document pursuant to art. 35, paragraph 2 of Presidential Decree 445/2000. Anyone who holds citizenship of a European Union country must present a passport or an identity document issued by their country of origin. Anyone coming from countries outside the European Union need only present their passport. The interview is aimed at assessing the candidate's aptitude and possession of the skills necessary to conduct the activities covered by the post-doc research contract.
During the interview, knowledge of the language: English and French will be assessed. For foreign candidates, adequate knowledge of the Italian language will be verified.
Following the interview the Selection Committee draws up the merit ranking, taking into account the overall scores awarded to the candidates, and identifies the winner of the selection procedure, who must have achieved a minimum overall score of at least 70/100. In the event of equal merit, preference is determined by the younger candidate.

Article 7
Scientific publications

Scientific publications that the candidate intends to use for the purposes of the procedure must be submitted exclusively using the methods indicated in art. 3 of this call.
The candidate presents the publications, in a maximum number of 3 as provided for in article 1 of this notice, declaring that the copy is compliant with the original.
Only publications or texts accepted for publication, together with a letter of confirmation from the publisher, according to current regulations, will be considered, as well as essays included in collective works and articles in journals in paper or digital format, excluding internal notes or departmental reports if they do not have an international ISSN or ISBN code. It is specified that, pursuant to M.D. 243/2011, the doctoral thesis, or equivalent qualification, is to be considered a publication and, therefore, if submitted, will be counted towards reaching the maximum number of publications permitted.

Publications written in a foreign language, with the exception of English, must be accompanied by a certified Italian translation of the foreign text, drawn up by the competent diplomatic or consular representation or by an official translator.
If the candidate submits a number of publications exceeding the indicated limit, the Selection Committee will proceed to evaluate them in a number equal to the above limit, taking into consideration the most recent ones as the publication date. Publications included in the list but not attached to the application will not be considered by the Selection Committee; only the documentation submitted by the

Digitally signed electronic document pursuant to Legislative Decree. 82/2005 and subsequent amendments and related provisions, which replaces the paper document and the handwritten signature

A translation into Italian or English, certified as compliant with the foreign text, must be attached to the submitted scientific publications written in a foreign language. This translation must be written by a competent diplomatic or consular representation or by an official translator.
The above-mentioned translation is not required when the scientific publications are written in English and when the selection procedure concerns a linguistic field and, therefore, the submitted publications are written in the language or languages for which the selection is announced.
For any technical issues, the candidate will be responsible for contacting the PICA platform support via the appropriate link on the platform.
